Junior Symphony Makes Debut on El Camino Stage

A junior symphony orchestra, composed of elementary school age musicians of Torrance and the Torrance area, made its debut in a concert at the El Camino College Campus Theater last night.

Orchestra organized under the sponsorship of the Torrance Area Youth Band, was conducted by James Van Dyck, youth band director, and William Heffernan, a member of the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

Soloists for the evening's concert included Mary Titus, flutist, Roland Miller, saxophonist, and Kathleen Jessoms, pianist.

CHARITY FUNDS—Two of the 40 charities to benefit from collections by Torrance teachers receive their money from Willard G. Andreasen, (center) president of the Torrance Education Association. While Mrs. John Walti, American Field Service representative, points out where the $650 allocated her group will go, James Weigel, Cancer Society representative, holds up a bag with $948 for his organization. The American Field Service this year will send students to Turkey through the exchange program.

Torrance Chairman Announces Books On TB Now Ready

Four new health education pamphlets on chest diseases, designed for use by the general public, have been produced by the Tuberculosis and Health Association of Los Angeles County, it was announced today.

Dean L. Sears, 1433 Post Ave., Torrance, chairman of the crippling respiratory disease fund raising campaign in this area, said the four new pamphlets are part of the series entitled "The ABC's of Chest Disease." The health education material released this week covers general breathing function, emphysema, bronchial asthma and coccidioidomycosis (valley fever).

Sears pointed out that the voluntary health agency is now conducting a mail fund raising campaign in Torrance and that educational material on crippling respiratory diseases is being made available to the general public as part of the association's year-round education program.

He said copies of these new pamphlets may be obtained by writing the TB and Health Association, 1670 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles 26, or calling DUinkirk 8-3401.

Greg Peterson Will Head Warhoop Staff Next Year

WAYNE OVERBECK ... Heads Publications

GREGG PETERSON ... Warhoop Editor

Greg Peterson, retiring sports editor, will head the El Camino College Warhoop staff during the fall semester. Wayne Overbeck, commissioner of publications, announced last week at the department's annual journalism banquet.

Overbeck made the announcement climaxing the evening's festivities at the Thistle Inn in Los Angeles.

Yearbook editor Sonja Ottenbacher introduced the cover design of the 1961 Warrior to the group of college scribes, while former sports editor Chuck Ainsworth was toastmaster of the evening.

Following introductions of the guests, W. A. Kamrath, newspaper adviser, issued a welcome to the audience of 50.

The publications department includes the staffs of three courses offered on the campus—yearbook, news, paper and press bureau.

AWARDS MADE
Awards were made by Eugene Uht, yearbook advisor, to photographers Sandra Buffet, and Kit Yamamoto; section editors Nancy Bobo and Violet Madrid, and Miss Ottenbacher for excellent work on the Warrior.

Kamrath then presented outstanding service awards to Editor Vicki Reed, photographer Frank Sweeney, Peterson and Overbeck for their dedicated work on the All-American weekly.

Besides faculty and staff members, guests of the college included Mr. and Mrs. James Cole.

Peterson, a graduate of Morningside High School, succeeds Miss Reed at the same school, as editor. Overbeck, an alumnus of Mira Costa High School, was recently re-elected Commissioner of Publications, holding a post on student council in that capacity.
